PURE LIVERPOOL SALT—COARSE AND FINE, by R. PITTOCK, Owner First and Morrison Streets, and No. 9 Front Street

Brave Words from Senator Wade

In the Senate on the 18th of January a debate took place on the proposition to appoint Provisional Governors for the Southern States. Senator Wade spoke as follows:

Mr. Wade said he had not intended to say anything on this great subject. He preferred to wait for the report of the committee to which the matter had been entrusted for investigation. But as the Senator from Wisconsin had in his elaborate speech yesterday failed to touch upon some of the most important parts of the subject he felt constrained to say something. Mr. Doolittle began by informing us of the principles that Mr. Lincoln had adopted. Well sir, Mr. Lincoln had entered upon a policy in regard to the admission of some of these States. During the period of the last Congress I believe that question was agitated before us and all the arguments presented failed to convince me that the States could be admitted. The arguments entirely failed to convince me that the time had come when it was safe to admit any of these. Therefore I contended against it, and for that I and those with whom I acted are accused of being a little captious and were said to be filibustering against the will of the majority. Now, I think Mr. Johnson has made a great improvement on this subject over his predecessor, although he has not yet touched upon the point where I think the difficulty begins. Mr. Lincoln advised us to admit Louisiana into the United States, while probably more than half her territory was trampled beneath the hostile foot of the enemy, and our flag did not cover half the territory, and perhaps half the population of the State. I did not think it would be safe to admit the State upon such terms. I had not seen anything in their conduct or proceedings to warrant me in saying that such a course would be safe. You will recollect that Mr. Lincoln did not require anything more from them than that one tenth part of them would take a certain oath not very difficult to take. Mr. Johnson has made an improvement—a great improvement—upon this, for he does require that they shall abolish slavery. He requires that they shall repudiate the rebel debt. He requires that they shall renounce the right of secession. He requires that they shall agree to the constitutional amendment abolishing slavery for ever. These in my judgment are great improvements upon the system of Mr. Lincoln. Had Mr. Lincoln himself at that time required these things, and had the States come up to it, I believe that I then would have yielded to his wishes and given him my support. But, sir, I have never had but one polar star to my notion, and that I adhere to, whether I am in a majority or in a minority. I never intend to be tempted from it one single inch. I have fixed my eyes upon the great principle of eternal justice and right, and it has borne me triumphantly through all difficulties in my legislative career since I had a seat in this body. I can triumphantly say that I have stood upon this floor when I had not ten men to support me against the entire Senate, and when the principle I advocated was, unfortunately, more unpopular than those I announce to day. How was the whole Senate startled by the idea of universal emancipation ten or fifteen or even five years ago? Talk about unpopular doctrines and attempt to intimidate me by the intimation that I shall be found in a minority among the people. I know the people better, I think. I know that I tried the great pathway of rectitude and right, and I don't care who opposes me. He has never failed me yet, and I don't fear he will on this occasion. Now, Mr. President, I will not boast, but I, with many others on this floor, can look back to our preceding course, and on this subject, with great satisfaction. I think, sir, that I can say with Paul, that "We have fought a good fight." We are not entirely through with it, I admit. We may have a little further to go in the same direction, but our path is fortunately easier than it has been. Yes, sir, I keep the faith, and I have no doubt of its final triumph. I never feared it, and I never had the least doubt how this whole thing would be settled, and it will all come right if we are true to our convictions. I do not fear my associates, either, in this great question, but there are things in my heart that I cannot yet see clearly. I give the President full credit for all he has done, and honor him for the manner in which he has insisted on the great guarantees I have alluded to. He has commenced, as it were, to complete this great arch of freedom right. He has laid the foundation deep upon the road of justice and right. He has demanded that before the law all men shall be equal. He has demanded that slavery shall be abolished. I agree with him so far and honor him that he stands firmly where he does. But, sir, he has failed to put the keystone upon the arch that he has built, and if you leave it where it is, it will go to ruin. I want, when this question is once settled, to be entirely done with it. I don't want eternally to be fighting over the question of slavery and the distinctions among the rights and privileges of the American people. Now sir, I say to President Johnson, to the democratic party and to the people of the United States, that I never will yield the controversy until all men in America shall stand upon an equal footing—equal before the law in every respect. When they will fix it so that can be done I will give up the controversy in which I have been engaged for so many years and no man will rejoice more than I that I have been relieved of it. Now Mr. President, in listening to the elaborate argument of the Senator from Wisconsin yesterday—a speech that was set forth here all prepared, written and printed, and probably submitted for the consideration of the administration before hand—I don't know as to that for certain, but—

Mr. Doolittle (rep.) of Wis.—As the Senator alludes to me, I will state to him distinctly that so far as the speech I made here yesterday was concerned, I had no consultation with the President or any member of his cabinet about it.

Mr. Wade—Well, I only surmised that. I thought so from what I saw in the surroundings, and what I saw in the audience that listened to it. I make no difference however. I suppose I must have been mistaken. But the Senator is undoubtedly the organ of the administration on this floor.

Mr. Doolittle—Will the honourable gentleman allow me to state, in relation to that, that I certainly do not stand in any such relation to the administration any more than any other Senator? There are certain points on which I agree with the President more than the Senator from Ohio. But I claim no more right to speak for the President than the Senator himself.

Mr. Wade—Well I don't know that he does. But I know it has generally been considered that he was more familiar with the views of the President than the rest of us. I listened to his able and deliberate argument upon this subject, in which he undoubtedly put forth all the views in favor of the policy he advocated that occurred to him or that he could muster into the service. But his speech was more remarkable for what it did not say than for what it did say. Now, sir, I don't remember in the whole course of his speech any allusion to the rights of four millions of men whose rights are involved in this discussion—rights that the Senator admits are dearer to him than life itself. No sir, if it was a son of his he would sacrifice him upon the altar before he would yield to the fact that he should not stand upon an equal footing with his neighbors upon the subject of suffrage. Yes sir, bearing all that great speech, involving this great principle as applied to four millions of his fellow citizens, he never alluded to it. Not a word, sir. If there were no such elements involved in this great controversy, I like him would find not very great difficulty about it. He differs from Mr. Lincoln's last speech—a dying declaration, in which Mr. Lincoln himself alludes to this subject, and said that that question was a complicated part of his argument in his judgment, I am nothing to do with it. Enough says he, that the seceded States do not maintain such a relation to the government that they can be admitted without Congressional aid, or words to that effect. Mr. President, I care but little what great names may say on this subject. No man honors the memory of Mr. Lincoln more than I do, but I do not take his opinion here. As a Senator on this floor I look for counsel wherever I can find it, and I will look as soon to any other source as to the President. A President is but a poor mortal like ourselves, and a Senator of the United States has no right to yield his opinion to a mere man. He is sent here for no such purpose. I like to have the aid of the executive, and his advice as to what measures and principles he thinks ought to be adopted. No man will listen to him with a more willing ear than I will, but unless his advice be square with my ideas of duty I will disagree with him as soon as with any other man. And this one question yet devolves upon us to settle, and we cannot shrink from it. It is for no-body else to settle. If we settle it wrong we cannot justify ourselves by saying that we took the advice of the President of the United States or of Mr. Lincoln. His counsel will be no justification to us if we make a mistake upon this great and perilous question that is looming up before us. I say to Senators—Look to yourselves, take counsel of your own judgments and your own consciences, and do your duty to your country and to God. Because if there ever was a question in Congress before that was peculiarly our own it is this. Where in the constitution do you find that the President is authorized to invoke or bring in the States of this Union, and who but we, the representatives of the people of the United States, are sent here to do this? We under the constitution of the United States, are the people, and the only tribunal that can settle the great question of the admission of a State. We are the only men who ought in a free government to declare upon what principle any State outside of the government shall be admitted to it. I do not care for that purpose whether it is a Territory of the United States, or whether it is a State that has forfeited all right and all ability to act for itself. It does not belong to the President of the United States, and if it did, then the free government of which we boast so much would be the most concentrated despotism on earth. Now, Mr. President, on the subject that the Senator didn't touch. I have already said, here are four millions of people ostracized from this government to be made serfs forever, notwithstanding your declarations of freedom, until you can find some way where this right can be guaranteed. Mr. President, I was one of those who was an early advocate of bringing these colored people into your army, invoking their aid to put down the rebellion. Over and over did I urge it upon the Executive two years before it took effect. I feel, sir, that according to the power with which I was invested I did as much as lay in my power to bring the Executive and Congress up to the work of invoking and bringing to the aid of the Union those colored people, both in the army and navy and everywhere else where they have assisted. Their employment in that capacity enforces upon me a duty. Would I lend my voice and my vote to induce that people to jeopardize their lives in defense of their country and then turn them over to the mercy of their enemies? Sir, the man that would do it deliberately and knowingly is the meanest of God's creatures. Tempt them into the service, let them fight through the war and then desert them to their enemies to be destroyed? The Senator from Wisconsin did not allude to this at all. His whole sympathy was with the rebels. The men who endeavored to destroy the constitution, the men who have buried three or four hundred thousand of our bravest sons, they were the men who had sympathy, but the brave colored men, weak and uninfluential, yet who gave you the strongest aid, without which you could never have got through the war, they have no part of your sympathy. Mr. Wade then discussed the temper and dispositions of the people of the South, which, he said, was disloyal and full of hate for the Union. He would keep the States of the South out of the Union until they gave the right of suffrage to the negro by legislation or constitutional amendment.

Mr. Sumner, (rep.) of Mass.—By legislation?

Mr. Wade—Certainly. He would do it on the principle that the President and that certain Senators did a great many other things—just as the President compelled them to adopt the constitutional amendment and repudiate the rebel debt. There was as much right to do one as the other. Mr. Wade then referred to the manner in which the constitutional amendment and other propositions of the President had been adopted by the South. Just as the conventions were about to adjourn they received a dispatch from the President telling them that unless they did a certain thing they would not be readmitted to the Union. They acquiesced of course, but it was under duress, and he could not blame them if they repudiated everything of the kind when the military power was withdrawn.

Miscellaneous Items.

The Times' Washington correspondent writing on the 31st of December, says an important piece of evidence against prominent rebels, such as Mallory, Yulee, Davis and others, has just come into the possession of the Government. It is the original copy of the famous letter written by Senator Yulee, in January, 1861, to Gen. Finnegan, of Fernandina, Florida, in which Yulee urged the immediate secession of Florida and other Southern States, and revealed the plot of the Southern conspirators here, resolved upon in caucus, which was that the Southern States should be urged on to secession, while their Senators and Representatives kept their seats here until the 4th of March, so as to prevent any action of the Government. This letter, resolutions and all, are in the hand writing of Senator Yulee, franked by him, and directed to Gen. Finnegan, Fernandina, "Independent Sovereignty of Florida." In February, 1862, Fernandina was captured by our forces, and this letter was found in Finnegan's house by the special correspondent of the Times, who accompanied the expedition. The original copy went to the New York Historical Society, which has turned it over to the Government. It is a nice little piece of documentary evidence of the early deeds of the traitors.

To refute beyond all question the story frequently reiterated in the South during the war, and which gained some slight credence in the North, in reference to the Government making inadequate provision for the subsistence of its prisoners, the Bureau of Military Prisons gives the following item in its late report to the War Department. That during the four years in which depots for the reception of Southern prisoners were kept up in many of the Northern cities, there accumulated a fund of upwards of $4,000,000 from a sale of the excess of rations issued to and not consumed by the prisoners, and more than half of this sum was used while the war was progressing in the purchase of wines and jellies for the benefit of the occupants of prison hospitals.

The brig C. M. Carver, Captain Treat, from Georgetown, South Carolina, with lumber for Searsport, was dismasted and filled with water in a gale on the 21st of December. On the 31st she was fallen in with seventy miles from Cape Ann, by the schooner Emma, and the crew taken off after being nine days on the wreck without food or water. One man was killed when the masts went over, and the steward died on the 30th of starvation, and when rescued the crew were living on his body. The survivors were landed at Gloucester.

Neophytes have labored under the delusion that Astoria, in Oregon, was rather a misty place, but it is dry as dust beside Cherrapoonjee. The most rain that Astoria gets, in any one year, does not exceed 88 inches or near 7 feet, while Cherrapoonjee enjoys 600 inches, or 50 feet. The wettest place in the world is Cherrapoonjee, situated in the Cossya hills, 20 miles from Calcutta. The rainfall at that spot is upwards of 600 inches in the year, or twenty times that of the very worst climate of Western Ireland.

The Political Situation.

For some time past there has been evidence of a disagreement between Congress and the President. Without taking counsel of Congress upon the grave subjects involved in the restoration of the rebel States to their old relations with the Government, the President has pursued a plan which was instituted by himself, and which in many of its details has almost from the first, been obnoxious to a very large portion of the loyal people of the country. He has taken it upon himself to do the whole work, giving not the smallest attention to the wishes of a large part of the best friends of the Government. Pardons have been dispensed without stint; rebels who deserved to suffer the extreme penalty of the law they had violated, have been placed in, or permitted to take high official positions in every rebellious State, political power throughout the South has been given exclusively into the hands of distinguished rebels, under the plea of organizing the militia, the very same persons who were disarmed after years of effort by the prowess of Grant and Sherman, have been armed again, and now with those States thus reorganized on a rebel basis and in the interest of defeated, though still defiant traitors, the President asks Congress and the loyal people of the nation to consider restoration complete, and to receive into our national halls of legislation the very men who sat at Richmond for four years plotting our overthrow, or who led the rebel armies against the Government of our fathers. It is against reconstruction on such a plan, and involving such results, that Congress takes a firm stand. The faithful representatives of a people who fought a wicked rebellion down at so fearful a cost, do not now intend to give up the hard-earned fruits of the tremendous struggle, nor to sanction a course that will place treason on an equal footing with, and make it quite as honorable as the most devoted loyalty.

The country has dealt with President Johnson in a spirit of unusual, and even surprising forbearance. Though not entirely approving his course, captious criticism has been hushed, and all have united in hoping that he would not turn against the loyal sentiment of the North. It was expected that he would yield in some degree to the counsels of Congress, and not set up his own will against the almost united voice of the representatives of the people. But it appears at last that he is unwilling to accord to Congress the right to legislate on any question which relates to the Southern States, and that he considers the restoration of the Union a matter which is to be managed by himself alone.

The Union party does not want to break with President Johnson. It is loth to declare its dissent from his policy. It will even yet rally around him if he will take a course consistent with the great principles for which our people gave their property and their lives. But it will no longer palter with rebels, nor will it consent to have the advantages of the great and costly victory it has gained, frittered away.

We have as yet no precise information relative to the provisions of the Freedmen's Bureau Bill, the veto of which was the final cause of the rupture between the President and Congress. The object of the bill, stated in its broadest terms, was undoubtedly to secure the freedom of those who were lately slaves. The second section of the Constitutional Amendment gives Congress power to "enforce their freedom by appropriate legislation." This, we are bound to presume, was what was attempted. The provisions of the bill may, however, have been too sweeping in their character, and on this account open to objection. But the President vetoed the bill on general grounds and therefore the inference at once arises that it is his purpose to abandon the freedmen to the cruel mercies of their old masters. So abandoned, the name of freedom will be to them a mockery, and the old slave oligarchy will have all the power over these unhappy people which they used to possess, without having any feeling of self interest for the welfare of those whom they were once accustomed to care for that they might reap a profit from their labor or sale.

The President insists that the Southern members now knocking at the doors of Congress shall be admitted. Were these persons loyal, they might be admitted at once. Not a dozen of them however, can take an oath to the effect that they did not aid the rebellion. With scarcely an exception, they are men who held places in the rebel Congress or Cabinet, or who were distinguished as leaders in the rebel armies. Most of them were elected because of their services in the cause of treason. It is this class of men that Congress determines to exclude. "Unwashed traitors" are [illegible] will be to make laws for a loyal people. Congress keep its doors to its duty if it do not forever hallowed halls and against those who with an utterly destroy the murderous hearts, strove to councils they are now [illegible] to whose national

The country will anxiously [illegible] to return development of this momentous [illegible] for the further President Johnson will yield to [illegible]. If he shall deliberately resolve [illegible] make them and to look for support to those who be used to denounce as the enemies of the republic, a loyal people will save themselves and their country in spite of his defection. Indiana State Convention—"Blowing Hot and Cold."

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb [illegible] The Union State Convention met at 10 o'clock this morning. [illegible] Lew Wallace [illegible] temporary Chairman [illegible] After the appointment of Committees on permanent organization and resolutions the Convention [illegible]

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb 2[illegible] Governor Baker was chosen permanent President of the Union State Convention. The [illegible] ticket was nominated: General Nathan Kimball for Treasurer, Colonel [illegible] for Secretary of State, McCarty for Auditor, and D. E. Williamson for Attorney General. The resolutions declare full faith at [illegible] in the President and his Cabinet, and in the Union majority of Congress and pledge support to each of them in all wise and needful legislation to restore authority in the South. The following [illegible] the resolution:

Resolved, That in Andrew Johnson we recognize a patriot true and tried, and we will support him in all constitutional efforts, but while endorsing the President, we also express entire confidence in Congress.

Resolved, That it is the province of the legislative branch of the Government to determine the question of reconstruction.

Three resolutions blowing hot and cold, without the slightest reference to the veto message were the result of fears lest the Convention might commit the party before the general plan of action could be [illegible] elsewhere. The Convention was largely attended, and the radical men were disgusted.

Meeting at Cooper Institute.

NEW YORK, Feb 22—Cooper Institute was crowded to night to endorse the President. F. B. Cutting was in the chair. David Dudley Field offered a written address and resolution declaring that the first question before the people is the pacification of the country. The conflict of passion should cease. All will agree that the freedmen must be given all the civil rights enjoyed by other citizens viz equality before the law. Whether they shall have the suffrage is the dividing question, and this belongs exclusively to the States.

The address commends the President's veto and expresses the belief that the exclusion of eleven States from Congress is manifest usurpation. Secretary Seward said: I am not here as an alarmist; I am not here to say that the nation is in peril or that it would be in peril if you adopt or reject the views of the majority in Congress. The country is not in peril in any way, nor do I think the progress of amelioration or civilization is in peril whether you adopt one set of political opinions or another. The only difference is, that one pilot says we may steer directly through the difficulties of reconstruction without delaying the progress of the old ship of State, while the other says we must take soundings, proceed cautiously and go around these difficulties. We should not practice the usual charity, if we did not think them both honest.

Action of the New Jersey Legislature.

TRENTON, N J., Feb 22—Resolutions were offered in the Senate to day, by J. M. Scoville, President of that body, favoring negro suffrage and condemning President Johnson's policy. Scoville said that the President made the worst investment of his life when he vetoed that bill. He abandoned and trampled upon every principle that elevated him to power. A lively debate followed and the resolutions were rejected.

Observance of Washington's Birthday.

CHICAGO, Feb 22—Reports from various cities represent a general observance of the day. Business was suspended.

A great number of public meetings are being held to take action on the President's policy, reports of which will be forwarded as soon as possible.

Democratic Rejoicing.

WHEELING, VA, Feb 22—One hundred guns were fired in honor of the President's veto. Rival meetings are in session, one to indorse the President and another to indorse Congress.

Secretary Seward's Opinions.

NEW YORK, Feb 23—The following are additional remarks made by Mr Seward at the Cooper Institute last evening: Mr Seward said Congress agonized over the question of reconstruction, not because the war has not come out right, but because they have not individually had a hand in bringing it to a happy termination. I hope no serious difficulty, from the conviction that there never was and never can be any successful process for restoring union and harmony among the States except the one with which the President has avowed he himself is satisfied. The President is in harmony with all the States that were in the rebellion, and the Executive and Judicial Departments are resuming their functions. Loyal representatives, more or less from these States, are now standing at the door of Congress, and have been standing there for three months, asking to be admitted as States, which, against their earnest desire, are left unrepresented.

Say what you will the States are already organized in harmony with our amended Constitution, and are in earnest co operation with the Federal Government.

It is impossible to reduce States to a territorial condition. Congress has had a reconstruction committee of fifteen members, who have stopped the wheels of legislation for three months to enable them to submit a plan different from that which is now on the eve of a happy consummation and what have they given us or proposed? An amendment to the Constitution to compel the excluded States to equalize suffrage on penalty of abridgement of their representation. This was no plan of reconstruction but an obstruction. A conflict in opinion between the President and Congress in reference to the Freedmen's Bureau is in its consequence comparatively unimportant. It would excite little interest if it stood alone. Both fully agree that this Bureau was created for the transition period between war and peace and should cease at the end of that period. The President thinks that period nearly passed, and that the original provision is sufficient while Congress thinks the original provision needs enlarging. I agree with the President in the hope that the extraordinary provision is not necessary. Ought the President to be denounced in the house of his enemies? Much more ought to be denounced in the house of his friends for refusing in the absence of any necessity to occupy or return the exercise of powers greater than those which are exercised by any imperial magistrate in the world. Judge ye, I trust, this fault of declining imperial power too harshly, tendered by a too confiding Congress, may be forgiven by a generous people.

It will be a sad hour for the republic when the refusal of unnecessary powers and patronage by the President shall be held as crime. When it shall be so considered the time will have arrived for setting up at the White House an Imperial throne, surrounding the Executive with Imperial legions.

Democratic Demonstrations at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Feb 23—While the crowd were surging to and from the front of the White House yesterday guards were placed around the entrance and none but Democrats were allowed to pass. The meeting was also addressed by Postmaster General Dennison, Henry J. Raymond, Francis B. Cutting, Daniels Dickinson and Geo. Opdyke and dispersed at a late hour. Mr John Wentworth, who was in front and near the guard, was pressed back by soldiers. He remonstrated when the policeman said he would arrest him if he did not keep still. Wentworth dared him to try it, with a loud voice, and then said: You have murdered Lincoln, and now you want to destroy Johnson.

A Speech by the President.

CHICAGO, Feb 21—The Republican's Washington special dispatch gives a full report of the President's speech yesterday. The meeting at Grover's Theatre adjourned to the White House to present a series of resolutions endorsing the President's veto. As it arrived in front of the White House a noisy crowd of 200 persons assembled. The President came out and said: It was extremely gratifying to know that so large a portion of his fellow citizens approved of the [illegible] he had adopted and which I intend to carry out. The day is peculiarly appropriate for the endorsement of a policy whose object is the restoration of the Union as designed by the father of his country. I stand here to day as I stood in the Senate in 1860 when I denounced traitors trying to break up the Government.

There were two parties, one of which was determined to destroy the Government and save slavery, and the other almost equally dangerous and destroying, willing to break up the Government. In the North or Whether disunionists came from the Union south I stand now as I did then for Constitution. The Government has struck forth its strong arm and with its physical power put down the rebellion. The [illegible] in proper spirit saying We were mistaken; we made an effort to carry out the doctrine [illegible] [illegible] We have traced this doctrine to [illegible] [illegible] we were mistaken. We acknowledge the flag of our country and we are willing to obey the Constitution and yield to the supremacy of the laws. Coming in that spirit I say to them: When you have yielded to the laws which you have so wickedly [illegible] I will go as far as I can upon the door of the [illegible] [illegible] who have erred and strayed from [illegible] The spirit of forgiveness [illegible] in which to deal with the whole people.

I know there has been a great deal said about the exercise of the pardoning power. There is no one who has labored with more earnestness than myself to have principal intelligent and conscious traitors brought to justice, the laws vindicated and the great fact judicially established that treason is a crime. But while conscious [illegible] intelligent traitors are to be punished should whole communities, States and [illegible] made to submit to the penalty of death? [No! no!] Let those who have erred be punished, but to the great multitude forced into the rebellion I say, give leniency and kindness. We put down the rebellion in order to prevent the separation of States, but when the struggle on our part proved to be successful, we find an effort to concentrate all the power in the hands of a few at the federal head and thereby establish a new principle of equality and as objectionable in [illegible] The Government may be revolutionized without war, and this is most dangerous because its progress is not so easily watched.

The great principle which [illegible] the Legislative department [illegible] has been virtually [illegible] [illegible] the two-thirds [illegible] and now [illegible] all that, still [illegible] the field [illegible] [illegible] whom they [illegible] President [illegible] You ask me who they are. I say that Stevens of Pennsylvania, and Charles Sumner of the Senate, and Wendell Phillips [Other voices—give it to Forney.] The President in reply to this said: I will not waste my ammunition on dead ducks.

I stand for my country, I stand for the Constitution. There I have placed my feet from my advent into public life. They may traduce, they may slander, or they may vituperate me, but let me say to you all it has no influence upon me. Let me say further, that I do not intend to be overawed by real or pretended friends, nor do I mean to be bullied by my enemies. My honest conviction is my courage. The Constitution is my guide. I know my countrymen it has been insinuated, no not insinuated, it has been said directly, in high circles, that if such usurpation of power as I am charged with, had been exercised some two hundred years ago, it would have cost the individual his head. Of what usurpation has Andrew Johnson been guilty? (no, none.) Is it usurpation that I stand between the people and encroachments of power? From the same source the exclamation has gone forth that they were in the midst of an earthquake, that they were trembling and could not yield. Yes, fellow citizens there is an earthquake coming, there is a grand swelling of popular judgment and indignation. The American people will speak, and by their instinct if not otherwise, they will know who are their enemies. I have endeavored to be true to the people in all the positions in this Government and what positions have I not at some time filled? I suppose it will be said that this is vanity but I may say that I have been in all of them, I have been in both branches of the Legislature. [A voice, "you commenced a tailor."] A gentleman beside me says I was a tailor. I began as a tailor, and that suggestion does not discount me in the least for when I was a tailor I had the reputation of being a good one, and making clothes to fit. I was always punctual to my customers and did good work. [Voices "We will patch up the Union yet."] No, we do not want any patch work, I want the original restored. Point to the man who can say that Andy Johnson ever was indirectly recreant to the Government or the mass of the people. Men may talk about it and about usurpation, but when I am persuaded the American people are the witnesses, I do not want it by innuendoes and indirect remarks in high places to be suggested to me. Have assurance, the knowledge is in their bosoms.

Others have exclaimed that the present obstacle must be got out of the way. What is that obstacle? I make use of a strong word, but it was to be removed no doubt—I say the intention was to assassination, that the obstacle which the people had placed here could be got out of the way. Are the opponents of this Government not yet satisfied? Are those who want to destroy our institutions and change the character of the Government, not satisfied with the quantity of blood which has been shed? Are they not satisfied with one great martyr in this place? If my blood must be shed because I vindicate the Union, remember the blood of the martyr is the seed of the church.

This seed will grow and continue to increase in strength and power though it may be cemented and cleansed in blood. One word about the amendments to the Constitution. In conversation with President Lincoln last February, he indicated his desire for an amendment compelling the rebellious States to send Senators and Representatives to Congress because it is part of the doctrine of secession that the States might withdraw their Senators and Representatives or refuse to elect them. Now we find Congress persistently refusing admission to the Representatives, and daily imposing new burdens of law and taxation on the unrepresented South. I regard this as a fundamental error. I never insisted on encroachments on the Constitution, and I stand prepared to resist them to day. Would to God the whole American people could be assembled here to day as you are, and could witness the great struggle going on to preserve the Constitution of their fathers. They would soon settle the question if they could only see the kind of spirit manifested in the effort to break up the principles of a free Government.

Union Meeting in San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb 23.—At a meeting of the Union Central Committee, held in San Francisco on the 23d day of February, 1866, the following resolutions were adopted and ordered published:

Resolved, That the present is a crisis in the closing of the war for the restoration of the Union in which it becomes all Union men to adhere firmly to the principles which have guided them through four years of rebellion and to act with the greater prudential discretion and deliberation, and not be unwarily entrapped by action or expression which shall seem to commit them to any co operation with that party who have for the last four years sympathized with the rebellion.

Resolved, That we do not perceive that there is an irreparable breach between the President and Congress, and that until such breach shall conclusively appear to exist, we shall continue to hope that the fruits of the triumphs of the Union armies are not to be lost, and that it is the duty of all Union men to avoid any entanglement with the Vallandighams, the Seymours, and the Copperhead Confederate sympathizers in California, by assisting at their public meetings or otherwise.

Resolved, That when such men as Vallandigham and Horatio Seymour, and the notorious Copperhead sympathizers of San Francisco, and those recreant Californians who have always denounced the suppression of the rebellion openly avowed themselves traitors sent their sons into the rebel army and always rejoiced over the reverses of the Union arms unite together in a public endorsement of the policy of a President, whom they have heretofore uniformly opposed, it is apparent that they do not fully understand that policy or that they are endeavoring to seduce the President from his allegiance to the Constitution.

Resolved, That the abolition of slavery in the United States is one of the results of the late rebellion and that it would be a most wicked, senseless and cowardly act of the free and loyal people of the United States should now withdraw their protection from the 4,000,000 of freemen, and permit them to be reduced again to slavery under State laws enacted by men whose hands are red with the blood of patriots.

Resolved, That we believe that President Johnson will remain true to the Constitution and to his pledges and that he will not suffer himself to be betrayed by the attempted seductions of men who were lately in arms against the Union, or by those who in act and declared sentiment sympathized with rebellion.

S. H. PARKER, Chairman pro tem.
ALFRED BARSTOW, Sec'y.

A mass meeting in aid of the California Branch of the African Freedmen's Aid Commission, was held at Platt's Hall last evening. The Hall was crowded to suffocation. Speeches were made by Governor Low and Col. Hawkins of Tennessee.

A meeting was held at the late Democratic Rooms, last evening at which resolutions were adopted endorsing President Johnson and pledging him their support. They oppose negro suffrage in any form and endorse the position of the President that the question belongs exclusively to the States and that it would be a gross violation of the federal compact for Congress to attempt to interfere in the matter, and the democratic party are favorable to the reconstruction policy of President Johnson. A call was issued for a mass meeting to be held on Tuesday next for a further and public endorsement and for the purpose of giving expression of their feelings in the premises as the occasion calls for.

THE MINING TRADE — [illegible] measure so well [illegible] calculated to [illegible] business in this city and advance the best interests of our young and growing State, as that of opening a free communication with Montana. [illegible] page of this paper we have devoted some space to give a statement of the action of San Francisco merchants on the same subject, and [illegible] placed in type we have received [illegible] similar meeting to day, at [illegible] o'clock [illegible] to be held at the rooms of the Portland Stock and Exchange Board. At the meeting in this city on Wednesday last but about a dozen of our merchants and citizens were present. [illegible] desired that there [illegible] full attendance to day. There are gentlemen here from San Francisco who will be present at the meeting to day, and [illegible] brought before our people in a light [illegible] their advantage [illegible] funds relative to the [illegible] the committee [illegible] favorable [illegible] and the [illegible] are identical with [illegible] The meeting to-day should be fully attended.

EXAMINATION AT THE SCHOOL BETH ISRAEL — The examination at this school was conducted with credit to the pupils, and satisfaction and pleasure to the teachers and the friends of the Institution, during Tuesday and Wednesday last. A rigid but just examination was made into the progress and learning of the children attending the school, and it must be said that very few schools having an equal number of attendant scholars present so large an average in the calculation of merit to the try and advancement. We found a general proficiency in grammar and mathematics, orthography and composition. Among the senior classes there were many who acquitted themselves with credit. A spirit of emulation seemed to animate a great number, and although prizes of excellence were awarded [illegible] computation of their merits during the session preceding this exhibition had placed themselves first in rank. The examination discovered a high degree of proficiency throughout the class. We would gladly name those who received prizes of distinction for good conduct, diligence and progress, but time and space forbid us this pleasure. Of the children in the Primary Department, ranging from the age of six to ten years, under the charge of Miss H. R. Phillips, much could be said in praise although the tender years of the little ones attending this department, should bespeak but limited expectations, we were surprised and delighted to observe among them a state of knowledge in reading spelling writing and geography, justifying the advancement of not a few to the senior department. Of the exercises we join in saying they were interesting—the examination being enlivened with songs and recitations and concluding with the distribution of premiums. It certainly must be a pleasure to the parents and guardians, to be able to testify to the ability and fidelity of the teachers of this school, Miss Phillips and Mr. B. Cornelius, as proven upon this occasion, and it is our province to congratulate the pupils and teachers upon their success. And it is right to add a word of credit to those of our fellow citizens to whose enterprise and good taste this city is indebted for one of its best objects. Although an establishment under the auspices of a Hebrew Congregation we noticed quite a number of pupils the sons of Christian gentlemen and while we admire the spirit of liberality which banishes from this school all distinction of religion and secures to the rich and the poor, the Jew and the Gentile, equal advantages and rights, we concede that too much praise cannot be accorded the Congregation for the means which they have provided to educate not only the child of the rich man, but those whom poverty or straitened circumstances prevent giving their offspring the benefits of instruction and learning.

FROM THE UPPER COUNTRY — The steamer Cascade returned to her dock in this city last evening at the usual hour, bringing a number of passengers and quite a heavy [illegible] express. The steamboat connection to Umatilla is [illegible] established, and passengers can now go through to Boise without impediment. The weather at Canyon City is reported to be extremely mild, and miners are fairly at work for the season. The man supposed to be Wm [illegible] Walla, the Sacramento murderer, who was arrested some weeks since at Centreville Idaho Territory, arrived from above last night. The Mountaineer is rejoiced at the good news of the coming on of the opposition steamer Hassalo. If the people will but sustain her, now that she has started, all will be well. The Twenty Second was celebrated by the Fire Department and citizens of Dalles City. ... Kurtz, the man who murdered the Chinaman at Idaho City, and was condemned to be hung, has had his punishment commuted to imprisonment for life. ....The Mountaineer says they dig diamonds in Owyhee by colonizing ants on the diamond fields. The industrious creatures frequently bring diamonds to the surface, when the honest and industrious miner has nothing to do but to pick them up. A surgeon at Boise City amputated three frozen feet from as many different men on the 20th of January. There are several other cases requiring the same treatment at that place. The sufferings of travelers in the snow storms this winter have been terrible, and on the aggregate the amputation of frozen extremities must amount to dozens.

THE SIERRA NEVADA — The steamship Sierra Nevada, Capt. Connor, will sail to-day at 4 o'clock for San Francisco. We understand fare has been fixed at $30 in the Cabin, and $15 in the Steerage. Had not the Montana come to the rescue fare would forever have remained at $45 and $35. The old lines will find it very convenient now to reduce prices, but until there was something salutary administered they could not afford it. We dare presume that there is not a line of steamships in the world that had been able to annually make anything like the same money, in proportion to the investment, as either line between this city and San Francisco, and yet, having [illegible] so highly, the aim of the owners has kept only in view the greatest [illegible] for their services, that they might extract from us just as much as they like, and we must bear it meekly. The Montana will be here in a few days, and will probably carry passengers just as safely and just as reasonably as the Sierra Nevada, and with a great deal more satisfaction, as people who go by her will know they are patronizing a line ardently desired for a long time by this community and who will furnish a class of steamers superior to the floating coffins in which the traveling public have been forced to jeopardize their lives for the past several years.

REPAIRED — During the time the steamship Sierra Nevada was at San Francisco last, she was taken out on dry dock for the purpose of ascertaining the extent of damages she had received from her situation on Warrior Point, in January. Capt. Connor informs us that the only damage found was for a space of about thirty feet on her keel, which was boomed up considerably, but was easily repaired. New planking and copper was placed on the injured spot. Capt. Connor thinks the Sierra Nevada is the worst abused ship afloat in the Pacific—he has all confidence in her—and it is only on account of our regard for him as a gentleman, and our conclusions that his judgment, as a seaman, is generally very nearly correct that we consent to say one word in favor of his ship, and at the same time we wish it understood that we have greater regard for the commander than for the vessel or her owners.

CIRCUIT COURT.—E. D. SHATTUCK, J., February 23rd, 1866.—M. Seller vs. Kinney & Quin. Judgment in favor of plaintiff against Kinney. Confirmation was given of sheriff sales of real estate in suits of Gree, administrator of the estate of Thompson, deceased, vs. G. C. Robbins, and suit of A. Cahn & Co. vs. A. Williams. John Fitzpatrick was sentenced to hard labor in the Penitentiary for one year, for larceny of $35 from Kate Rogers. State vs. Thomas McFarland and James Thompson. Defendants pleaded guilty of wilfully administering croton oil to Dougherty but not intending personal injury. Held for sentence on Monday next. McGowen vs. Auk [illegible] The testimony in this case was not yet concluded, but the case will probably be submitted to-day.

WILLAMETTE THEATRE.—A good audience witnessed the play at Willamette Theatre last evening. See program for to-night.

GEN. STEELE.—Major General Frederick Steele, the new Commander of the Department of the Columbia arrived by the steamship Sierra Nevada on Thursday night and left yesterday on the steamer Nellie Troup accompanied by his staff officers for Fort Vancouver. He was serenaded at Arrigoni's by the 14th Infantry Band and escorted by them to the steamer, when he took his departure for the Fort. In the evening a salute was fired in this city in honor of his arrival to assume command of the Department.

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.—Religious services will be resumed in this city in the First Presbyterian Church on to-morrow by the Pastor Rev. P. S. Caffrey. Rev. Dr. Benson will preach in the evening. [illegible] the Rev. Dr. Atkinson [illegible] Young Men's Christian [illegible] evening.

THE NEW COIN.—The [illegible] Messrs. Wm. [illegible] & Co., are now delivering to [illegible] May who arrived from the capital on [illegible] The new code [illegible] that reflect [illegible] Secretary May has already begun the distribution of the work.

BUTMAN'S PAINTINGS.—A recent sale of [illegible] in San Francisco, of Butman's paintings [illegible] realized in the vicinity of $3,000. As this is the first sale of a collection of one artist's work, it speaks well.

FOR VICTORIA.—The fine schooner Alfred Crosby, Capt. Ketchum, is advertised to [illegible] for Victoria on the 28th. For freight or passage apply to the Portland Gas Light Company, office 51 Front street, up stairs.

NEWS FAVORS.—Yesterday we obtained from McCormick an excellent selection from his stock of late newspapers. Editors know how to appreciate a favor of this kind.

A coal mine has been discovered at the foot of the classic Mount Olympus, thirty miles from Salonica. It is certainly a most important discovery for Mediterranean steamers which can obtain their fuel from the mine.

"Married couples resemble a pair of shears," says Sydney Smith, "so joined that they cannot be separated, often moving in opposite directions, yet always punishing any one who comes between them."

How the President "Makes Treason Odious"

We ask attention to the following strong and truthful article from that staunch California journal, the Sacramento Union. It clearly shows to what grave and dangerous errors the President's [illegible] policy has led:

When the [illegible] President's [illegible] the new [illegible] party [illegible] the support of the Government. The President [illegible] by the kindness [illegible] of his speech [illegible] treason [illegible] every [illegible] ought a speech from the President and every speech he contained a strong assurance that traitors should be punished and treason should be made odious. Mercy was slain, but as the new President repeatedly declared justice still survived. And loyal men threw up their hats and hurrahed for Andrew Johnson, who might be a little rougher on the rebels than the last Lincoln had been but who would take excellent care that the lessons of the great victory should sink into the heart of the South. The only proposed was a just one, for in a republic as free as ours there is no excuse for treason; the atrocities of the Southern leaders had placed them beyond the pale of mercy, and exemplary punishment was manifestly needed to impress upon the country the sure retribution that would follow such crimes against humanity. As the President regards his work as complete, and insists that Congress shall recognize it as a gratifying success his statesmanship should be known while [illegible] he has actually achieved the end he professed to have in view. Has treason been made odious? Glance over the South, look at the character of the men who are knocking at the doors of Congress, survey the Conventions that are proclaiming their endorsement of the President's policy, and scrutinize the quality of the delegations that now enter the White House with jubilant feet. Do we not behold, rather, the consummate flower of the Georgia Senator's doctrine when traitors become numerous treason becomes respectable? The personnel of the State Governments in the rebel region would almost persuade us that the President had acted upon the theory that inasmuch as the Southern oligarchy were determined to rule or ruin, the only way to prevent them from wrecking the country was to let them rule it. The amnesty proclamation, with its stringent exclusions, was pronounced by the President himself a mere bugbear to frighten the excepted classes into asking pardon and taking the oath. The South Carolina authors of the rebellion were pardoned in a lump at the simple request of Governor Perry; not one of them has been arrested, and all of them are either holding office or enjoying their plantation dignity on their restored estates. The Virginia rebels are training General Lee as a "Democratic" candidate for Governor, and his election is inevitable if he will consent to run. Another rebel General is Governor of Mississippi. A rebel Colonel is Governor of Alabama. The crop of Congressmen produced by this plan of making treason odious includes members of the Confederate Congress, who plotted and sanctioned the starving of Union men at Andersonville, and rebel Generals who are as proud of their bloody work to day as if they had, indeed, planted their standard upon the Capitol at Washington. When the President started to make treason odious, the rebellion was prostrate at the feet of the conquering Grant, the vanquished realized the powerful majesty of the Government, and, as the extreme of their presumption, hoped the proscription would not extend beyond the conspicuous leaders of the revolt. Then treason was felt to be a crime and an overwhelming public sentiment demanded that it should be legally recognized and punished. To day, as the result of the President's policy the Southern press with a few exceptions and the Copperhead press, without an exception are as thorough Confederates as if they were flushed with triumph over the loyalists of the land; office and ovations are granted to conspicuous traitors; the entire host of Union men are branded as fanatical destructives who must be put down, and the President countenances the unhung criminals who indulge in such threats; combinations are being formed, ostensibly to "sustain the President," but really to restore a traitorous and blood-stained oligarchy to power at Washington. If we assume that Andrew Johnson honestly intended to make treason odious and secure the fruits of a hard-won victory to the loyal people of the country, again we ask a judgment upon the statesmanship that has achieved a diametrically opposite result. Fortunately the Republic has vitality enough to overcome the evils of such experiments, and the same spirit that subdued the rebellion, working through the medium of a determined Congress, will yet accomplish a result which has thus far eluded the President.

SIMPLE BUT EFFECTUAL.—The entire freedom from all deleterious ingredients renders "Brown's Bronchial Troches" or Cough and Voice Lozenges, a safe remedy for the most delicate female, or youngest child, and has caused them to be held in the highest esteem by Singers and Public Speakers generally. In Coughs, Irritation of the Throat, caused by Cold or unusual exertion of the vocal organs, in speaking in public or singing, they produce the most beneficial results.

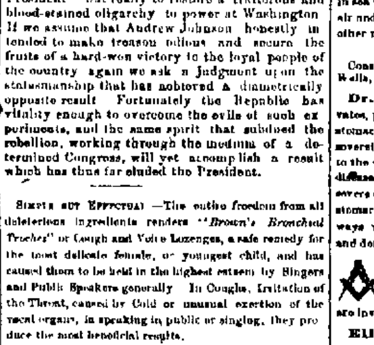

DIED:

In this city Feb. 23d, 1866, Mr. Edwin Samuel Payn, aged 30 years.

The funeral will take place to-morrow from the late residence of the deceased on Seventh street, between Alder and Washington, at [illegible] o'clock P. M. Friends and acquaintances are invited to attend.

Persons of sedentary habits troubled with weakness, lassitude, palpitation of the heart, lack of appetite, distress after eating, torpid liver, constipation, &c., deserve to suffer if they will not try the celebrated

PLANTATION BITTERS,

Which are now recommended by the highest medical authorities and warranted to produce an immediate beneficial effect. They are exceedingly agreeable, perfectly pure and must supersede all other tonics where a healthy, gentle stimulant is required.

They purify, strengthen and invigorate.
They create a healthy appetite.
They are an antidote to change of water and diet.
They overcome effects of dissipation and late hours.
They strengthen the system and enliven the mind.
They prevent miasmatic and intermittent fevers.
They purify the breath and acidity of the stomach.
They cure Dyspepsia and Constipation.
They cure Diarrhea and Cholera Morbus.
They cure Liver Complaint and Nervous Headache.
They make the weak strong, the languid brilliant and are exhausted nature's great restorer. They are composed of the celebrated Calisaya bark, wintergreen, sassafras, roots and herbs, all preserved in perfectly pure St. Croix rum. For particulars, see circulars and testimonials around each bottle.

Beware of impostors. Examine every bottle. See that it has our private U. S. Stamp unmutilated over the cork, with plantation scene, and our signature on a fine steel plate side label. See that our bottle is not refilled with spurious and deleterious stuff. Any person pretending to sell Plantation Bitters by the gallon or in bulk, is an impostor. Any person imitating this bottle or selling any other material therein whether called Plantation Bitters or not, is a criminal under the U. S. Law and will be so prosecuted by us. We already have our eye on several parties re-filling our bottles, &c., who will succeed in getting themselves into close quarters. The demand for Drake's Plantation Bitters from ladies, clergymen, merchants, &c., is incredible. The simple trial of a bottle is the evidence we present of their worth and superiority. They are sold by all respectable druggists, grocers, physicians, hotels, saloons, steamboats and country stores.

—OF—

HAS BEEN USED FOR NEARLY

HALF A CENTURY,

WITH THE MOST ASTONISHING SUCCESS IN CURING

Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Croup, Liver Complaint, Bronchitis, Difficulty of Breathing, Asthma, and every affection of the

THROAT, LUNGS, AND CHEST

INCLUDING EVEN

CONSUMPTION.

There is scarcely one individual in the community who wholly escapes, during a season, from some one, however slightly developed, of the above symptoms—a neglect of which might lead to the last named, and most to be dreaded disease in the whole catalogue. The power of "medicinal gum" of the Wild Cherry Tree over this class of complaints is well known; so great is the good it has performed, and so great the popularity it has acquired.

In this preparation, besides the virtues of the Cherry, there are commingled with it other ingredients of like value, thus increasing its value ten fold, and forming a Remedy whose power to soothe, to heal, to relieve, and to cure disease, exists in no other medicine yet discovered.

The unequalled success that has attended the application of this medicine in all cases of

has induced many physicians of high standing to employ it in their practice, some of whom advise us of the fact under their own signatures. We have space only for the names of a few of these —

E. BOYDEN, M. D., Exeter, Me.
ALEXANDER HATCH, M. D., China, Me.

ABRAHAM KILLMAN, M. D., Boundbrook, N. J.
H. D. MARTIN, M. D., Mansfield, Pa.

The proprietors have letters from all classes of our fellow citizens, from the halls of Congress to the humblest cottage, and even from beyond the seas; for the fame and virtue of WISTAR'S BALSAM have extended to the uttermost bounds of the earth, without any attempt on our part to introduce it beyond the limits of our own country.

TO CALIFORNIANS AND OREGONIANS.

After October 1, 1863, all genuine WISTAR'S BALSAM of WILD CHERRY for the Pacific Coast will be enclosed in a new wrapper which will bear the printed names of both SETH W. THE EFFECT OF GREENBACKS IN NEVADA — The Gold Hill News says

There is no use disguising the fact that hundreds, and perhaps thousands of men in this community (laboring men) have made up their mind to leave this section the coming spring because they fear and believe that they are to be paid four dollars in greenbacks where they used to get four dollars in coin It is the laboring man that is distressed and indignant at the reversed condition or altered phase of our financial basis as a people Not the bankers, no!, perchance the merchants but the workers, the miners and mill men —these are they who set two or at least depreciated service in store for them It is easy enough for bankers to settle their accounts with their honorable debtors; and, if they choose, commence their transactions on a legal tender basis It is a handy matter for the merchant to mark up his goods forty percent, and take greenbacks at their face But will labor go up in ratio? Has experience in the East shown this to be the case? To the contrary, no! The decision of the Supreme Court bears heavily, and especially so on the working classes; and they are the ones and so far as we know the only ones, who bitterly exclaim at the state of financial affairs, as left by our Supreme Judges

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

WEEKLY REVIEW

PORTLAND, February 23 1866

The Columbia river is open to Dalles, and very probably to Wallula and White Bluffs, and trade is much more active than for the week previous The steamship Sierra Nevada, which arrived last evening brought a full cargo of general merchandise, and the bark Helen W Almy which arrived on Sunday was also full freighted and stocks are considerably replenished We observe many goods opening direct from New York

Material changes have taken place in the management of steamship matters on this coast of late, from the inauguration of an opposition line between New York and San Francisco to that of the establishment of a new line on the route between Portland and San Francisco

The opposition line between New York and San Francisco via Panama, is being placed on by a wealthy company, of which W H Aspinwall, of New York, is said to be the leader, with a capital stated at $4,000,000 The vessels comprising this new line are what has been known in the East as the "Star" line, plying between New York and New Orleans, as follows: the side-wheel steamers Morning Star, 2,400 tons; Evening Star, 2,015 tons; Guiding Star, 2,600 tons; Rising Star, 2,600 tons and the screw steamer Mississippi, 2,000 tons; Merrimac 2,000 tons. The first steamer from New York will be the Rising Star, recently launched, to sail 20th proximo Since the [illegible] was first made, the stock of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company has undergone a material decline in New York, and we may reasonably expect a [illegible] reduction in the rates of freight via the Isthmus, after the new enterprise shall be fairly under way.

The new line between this city and San Francisco is already inaugurated, comprising three new and first-class propellers, viz: the Montana, 1,031 tons, the Idaho, 1,010 tons, (to arrive,) and a new vessel not yet off the stocks. The principal owners of this line are Messrs. Patten, of Bath, Maine, the builders, and the agency is to be held by Messrs. McCraken, Merrill & Co. The Montana will leave on her first trip to Portland on to-morrow, and the telegraph has already advised us that rates of fare and the tariff on freight has materially declined. The Idaho is expected to arrive here in about four months, to be followed by the third ship (for which no name has yet been d[illegible]) of about the same dimensions, sometime next autumn Thus, with increased accommodations, we may expect some abatement in the rates of freight and passage, and, by consequence, an increased [illegible] between the bases of operation, and considering past grievances the people of Oregon should stand firm in support of the new line.

The agency of the old line of California and Oregon packets, which was formerly in the hands of the late firm of Richards & McCraken, but more recently held by the firm of McCraken, Merrill & Co., has finally been transferred to P. C. Dart, a Front street merchant of San Francisco, and it is rumored that the agencies at Portland of both the Steam Navigation Company and Holliday's line have been withdrawn. The Sierra Nevada, however, came to McCraken, Merrill & Co. on her present trip, and we are not able to speak definitely with regard to the change. The packet line at present comprise five first-class barks, whose trips are usually made with great regularity; but as the Pacific and Montana are taking freight at less rates than the vessels could possibly afford to carry it, we may safely presume our commerce with San Francisco will in future be [illegible] mostly with steamers, and the packets will be [illegible] new avenues of trade.

The [illegible] line heretofore known as the "Holliday Line," was re-incorporated in New York last September under the name of "The California, Oregon and Mexico Steamship Company," and is comprised of the following gentlemen, all of whom are residents of the East Ben. Holliday, W. L. Ball, Paul S. Forbes, S. L. M. [illegible], W. F. Bunton, W R. Travers, and George [illegible]. Ben. Holliday is president of the new company; W. L. Dall, Vice President; John E Russell, Secretary; and Jessie Holliday, General Agent for the Pacific coast

The company have a line between San Francisco and Crescent City, between Portland and San Francisco, and between San Francisco and Mazatlan. The last line is about to be extended to Acapulco, in compliance with a contract the company have [illegible] of the Imperial Government of Mexico. The company have recently purchased two [illegible] ships, the Oriflamme, lately arrived from China, 1,260 tons register, and the Continental, 1,600 tons register, which is now on the way out from New York, having sailed December 15th. The former will probably be placed in the Oregon line, and the latter in the M[illegible] line.

The people of California have of late taken a great interest in [illegible] a portion of the trade of Montana. At a recent [illegible] of merchants of San Francisco, the committee [illegible] the merits of the different northern routes to Montana [illegible] several reports [illegible] the [illegible], the Humboldt route, the Portland route, and the Red Bluff route. On motion, the [illegible] authorized to [illegible] With [illegible] the Portland route the following resolution was [illegible]

Resolved, That [illegible] the people of Oregon have [illegible] spirit of [illegible] which tends directly to [illegible] all routes from Portland to Montana [illegible] it has been demonstrated, that that is the only route over which goods have [illegible] to that [illegible], that we [illegible] with the merchants of Portland as to the best [illegible] the purpose in view.

Messrs. J. M. Gowey, S. C. Merrill, and L. H. Allen were [illegible] a committee of conference with the Portland [illegible], and the report which favored the route via the Columbia river, White Bluffs and Pen d'Oreille Lake, was received by telegraph on the 23d. Upon introducing the resolution, Mr Goewy said,

It has been truthfully stated that trade will find its natural [illegible]. The first goods taken into Montana Territory from the Pacific coast were from Lewiston, in the fall of 1862. Since then, owing to the more recent [illegible] of gold and the increase of population, supplies were obtained from St. Louis, by reason of superior [illegible]. Last summer and fall, owing to the difficulty of navigating the Missouri River, sufficient supplies could not be obtained to fill the demands of the country I have in my possession some facts concerning the amount of goods and the means of transportation, during the season of 1865, from the head of navigation on the Columbia river to Blackfoot, to which I would call the attention of this meeting

Over 100 pack trains, averaging 30 animals each with 300 [illegible] to the animal, making an aggregate of 750 tons, were sent from different points on the Columbia River to Montana The cost of transporting these goods was not less than $240,000; the value of the goods about $1,200,000, making the total value of goods laid down at Helena during this one [illegible], by the Columbia river route alone $1,400,000 The distance by land travel is 450 miles; the price of freight varied from 15 to 18 cents per pound In view of these facts, there seems to be but one conclusion, viz: That we should give aid to that route without disparaging any other; that has been demonstrated, not only to be the most practicable but the only one, over which merchandise can be shipped to compete [illegible] fully with the St. Louis and Chicago trade

Mr Nesmith said that although he had a house in Portland and another at Red Bluff, and had contributed to open the roads from those places to the mines, he also [illegible] the success of Calville, and would take stock in the company if one were formed He believed the Calville project would pay at this moment, and pay better in the future He had no doubt that San Francisco could take all the trade of Salt Lake, and it is important to secure it. Many [illegible] of miners may leave California this year, and if exertions are not made the business of San Francisco may decrease instead of increase, as it should The laws of trade are well established If we can deliver freight cheaper in Salt Lake than St Louis can we shall command the business, because the freight from New York is as cheap to San Francisco as to St Louis; and if we can sell our goods one quarter of a cent cheaper on the pound they will not buy of anybody else

Mr McManus said he had been a packer for seven years in Boise and other northern mines, and he had seen something of the routes in question Seventy pack trains numbering from fifteen to ninety animals each left Walla Walla last fall for Montana, and some of them got through in twenty-nine days The regular time from San Francisco to Helena in the summer for freight, will not exceed thirty three days The Mullan road could be put in good condition at an expense of $10,000, and then the freighters will keep it up If the road is given away in franchises to small companies the tolls will be so outrageous that nobody can freight goods with profit over it If the Mullan road is once opened no other route can compete with it for the Montana trade From the Portland Landing freight could be taken for 7 cents or 8½ cents from Portland to Helena

The committee recommended that the merchants of San Francisco co operate with the merchants of Oregon in improving [illegible] demonstrating the practicability of the routes from the Columbia river —that via White Bluffs, that via Lewiston, and that via Wallula

THE STANDARD AMERICAN BILLIARD TABLES!

AND COMBINATION CUSHIONS

MESSRS. PHELAN & COLLENDER

WOULD RESPECTFULLY CALL THE ATTENtion of persons wanting Billiard Tables to the great superiority of the above tables manufactured exclusively at their establishment

At the Billiard Congress of 1863, composed of all the first class players of America it was unanimously resolved that tables of our manufacture should be used at all matches for the Championship, as the best and only reliable tables

These Billiard Tables have received the unqualified approval of the best players and most competent judges, who have universally pronounced them unequaled for general excellence and durability

Seven distinct patents for improvements in Billiard Tables have been granted to us by the United States Patent Office and we have lately obtained a Patent from the French Government, for our improvement in Billiard Cushions

We employ in the construction of our tables, a variety of machines specially made for the purpose by means of which we are enabled to insure a scientific and mechanical accuracy hitherto unknown in Billiard manufacture.

Having a long experience and thorough knowledge of all the appliances of Billiards, and constantly on hand a large stock of the best and most thoroughly seasoned materials, we are prepared to furnish everything required in the Billiard line with unprecedented dispatch

The eminent French Billiard Player, M. Berger, has published the following opinion:

"NEW YORK, 28 August, 1865.

"On the eve of leaving the United States, I am happy to declare to all amateurs of Billiards that after a tour of eleven months through the principal cities, I have been enabled to judge in a satisfactory manner of the superiority of the Billiard Tables manufactured by Phelan & Collender The system of manufacturing is so superior, that I am happy to introduce their style of cushion into France They have united to their manufacture of American Billiard Tables that of the French Tables, of remarkable excellence and beauty For these reasons, I am happy to make this declaration

BERGER, CLAUDIUS
Prof. of Billiards, Paris

Parties ordering from us will find our prices as low as good work can possibly be made for We sell first-class articles at a fair price, and will not make an inferior article at any price.

Orders by mail carefully and promptly executed Illustrated Catalogues and Price Lists sent by mail The "BILLIARD CUE," a journal published in the interest of Billiards and containing details of all novelties, a copious record of Billiard news, and everything of interest to amateurs of Billiards, sent free on application

General Remarks.

Revenue stamps may be used indiscriminately upon any of the matters or things enumerated in Schedule B except proprietary and playing card stamps for which a special use has been provided

Postage stamps cannot be used in payment of the duty chargeable on instruments

It is the duty of the maker of an instrument to affix and cancel the stamp required thereon If he neglects to do so the party for whose use it is made may stamp it before it is used but in no case can it be legally used without a stamp An instrument subject to stamp duty but issued not issued unstamped prior to August 1 1864 may be rendered valid by stamping it as required by section 163 of the Act of June 30, 1864; if issued since, the case falls under section 158 of said Act as amended by the Act of March 3 1865

Suits are commenced in many States by other process than by writ viz summons, warrant, publication, petition &c in which cases, these, as the original process severally require stamps

The jurat of an affidavit taken before a justice of the peace notary public, or other officer duly authorized to take affidavits, is held to be a certificate, and subject to a stamp duty of five cents, except when taken in suits or legal proceedings

Certificates of Loan, in which there shall appear any written or printed evidence of an amount of money to be paid on demand or at a time designated, are subject to stamp duty as "Promissory Notes."

The assignment of a mortgage is subject to the same stamp duty as that imposed upon the original instrument, that is to say for every sum of five hundred dollars, or any fractional part thereof, of the amount secured by the mortgage at the time of its assignment, there must be affixed a stamp or stamps denoting a duty of fifty cents.

When two or more persons join in the execution of an instrument the stamp to which the instrument is liable under the law may be affixed and cancelled by either of them

In conveyances of real estate, the law provides that the stamp affixed must answer to the value of the estate or interest conveyed

No stamp is required on any warrant of attorney accompanying a bond or note when such bond or note has affixed thereto the stamp or stamps denoting the duty required; and whenever any bond or note is secured by mortgage, but one stamp duty is required on such papers such stamp duty being the highest rate required for such instruments or either of them In such case a note or memorandum of the value or denomination of the stamp affixed should be made upon the margin or in the acknowledgment of the instrument which is not stamped.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS, Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pain and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs, brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION! IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.
